TEXT ASOLE-SEARCHING

- | | | |
|---|---|----|
| 1 | Sneakers are casual shoes also known as 'takkies'. Today, these shoes are a popular choice of footwear worn by all types of people throughout the world. | |
| 2 | The first sneaker was introduced in the 1860s in the form of a specialised running shoe made of leather and spikes. By 1892 the United States Rubber Company modified the design to include a rubber sole. These shoes were mass-produced and nicknamed 'sneakers', because of their soft, noiseless rubber soles. | 5 |
| 3 | Today, the sneaker culture is worth billions of rands worldwide. The market continues to grow rapidly. A 2017 report released by Transparency Market Research expects the global footwear market to reach over 3 trillion rands in value by 2020. It is impossible to deny that what was once street culture has turned into a mass consumer movement. | 10 |
| 4 | The market is driven by people known as sneakerheads, who collect, trade or admire sneakers as a hobby. It is also promoted by hip-hop culture and ordinary people who love this type of footwear. The sneaker culture has risen from humble, functional beginnings to the fashion trend it is today. | 15 |
| 5 | Converse, a sneaker manufacturer, was the first company to get celebrities to endorse their products. They set a marketing standard in the world of athletic footwear by adding the name of celebrity basketball player, Chuck Taylor, to the ankle patch of their All Star sneakers. | 20 |
| 6 | What began as a subculture is now universal and the sneaker industry's growth can be plotted alongside the rise of a music culture from the 1950s, when famous musicians wore this type of footwear. It exploded with the commercialisation of hip-hop. A turning point was the release of rapper RUN-DMC's track, My Adidas . This signified the beginning of sneaker endorsement ¹ deals for non-athletes and what rappers wore started to become popular among the youth. | 25 |
| 7 | 'From a young age it has always been about having the coolest sneaker but now it is also about the culture,' explained Thabo and Thabiso Modiselle, founders of culture and sneaker site, YoMzansi . 'We were influenced by streetwear, music and hip-hop movies, and started studying the culture and educating ourselves on major sneaker brands.' | 30 |

- | | | |
|----|--|----|
| 8 | Sneaker culture continues to be influenced by basketball and hip-hop music with no signs of slowing down. Teenagers look up to a lot of musicians who can be seen on television wearing these brands. Most teenagers wear what they see on television. They will buy a pair of sneakers because they saw one of their favourite artists post it on social media, or wearing them in a new music video. | 35 |
| 9 | As streetwear devotee, Naledi Radebe, puts it, 'At the most basic level, sneakers are a form of transport. At the highest, they are a symbol of character and status. All these shoes say something about the people who own them. They are a representation of the energy and spirit you, as an individual, want to send to the world.' | 40 |
| 10 | Sneaker brands have changed their business model only a decade ago and now rely on the internet to promote their products. One can always find out about fresh trends on Instagram or use specific websites to order directly. Technology has made it infinitely quicker to share sneaker information and to sell them across the globe. | 45 |
| 11 | The online shopping for sneakers has been made easy. Some people still enjoy the culture of walking into the store and trying on a pair of sneakers. However, others are moving towards online shopping because of the wide range available, regardless of where they are in the world. | 50 |
| 12 | The sneaker culture is serious business. Today sneakers go way beyond fashion or functionality; they signify who you are through the choices you make. | 55 |
| 13 | Sneakers have the unique power to transcend boundaries of gender, age and socio-economic standing, positioning them as the footwear of choice for millions of people. | |

TEXT CKEEPING YOUR TEETH HEALTHY

Healthy teeth require a commitment to a strict daily routine. It is important to brush your teeth in the morning and again before you go to bed.

However, brushing alone does not effectively clean the teeth as food particles can get stuck in the hard-to-reach areas between the teeth. Therefore, flossing before brushing is important.

Brushing your tongue is also necessary to help remove bacteria and prevent bad breath. Use mouthwash after brushing your teeth. It is a great cleaner, because if you rinse well, it may pass through the tiniest spaces between your teeth. This gives added protection to your teeth during the day.

Your toothbrush is often moist and kept in an enclosed storage space that creates an environment for bacterial growth. A good habit would be to change your toothbrush every three or four months or when you notice that the bristles are spreading or changing colour.

Eating large amounts of sugar-loaded foods like sweets, cookies, cakes, pastries, fizzy drinks and dried foods causes tooth decay. Bacteria, which feed on these sugar-loaded foods, damage the tooth enamel.

Water does not stain the teeth, therefore, consume large quantities. It helps prevent cavities by washing away sugars and acids that can linger on your teeth. It can prevent damage and decay of your teeth. Adding mint to your water will freshen your breath.

You should have regular dental check-ups to detect the early signs of tooth decay. Early treatment will prevent the loss of teeth.

EMOJIS

2	Emojis are the first truly global form of communication. Over 90 per cent of social media users communicate using emojis, with more than six billion exchanged daily. 3,2 billion people use the internet, three-quarters via smartphones equipped with emojis.	5
3	There are around 1 900 images to choose from. Emojis are also fast replacing textual forms of internet slang. Take the photo-sharing platform Instagram. Smileys have nudged out abbreviations with similar meanings, such as 'lol'. Unlike many abbreviations, which can be language specific, emojis are instant recognisable to Instagram users worldwide.	10
4	A language is not constituted by emojis. They have no grammar so we cannot combine them into more complex units of meaning. But they are perfect for enhancing text-based messages.
